She's So Pretty

A Parody of "I Feel Pretty" from the musical "West Side Story" (1 Peter 3:3-4)

She's so pretty and she's witty
It's a pity she's prettier than me
But I'm certain without makeup she's a mess to see
Her hair shimmers, shines and glimmers
And she's trimmer than women should be
I'd bet money that she's had elective surgery

See the pretty girl in the grocery store (who? what girl? where?)
Buying only vegies and fruit
Such a pretty face, such a pretty walk,
Such a pretty girl, such a snotty snoot

She's so charming and alarming
She's disarming the men that she meets
It's no wonder, they don't see her size eleven feet
She seems noble, but it's "no bull"
That she's really pretending to be Something nicer just to irritate the likes of me

See the pretty girl in her jogging shoes (oh, that girl there)
Running nearly ten miles a day
Running here and there, running everywhere,
Getting in my hair, please just run away

If she offends me, it's just envy
I've allowed to inhabit my heart
It was stupid letting jealousy to even start
Lord, please change me, rearrange me
For it pains me to fester within
Real true beauty comes when you eliminate my sin-
Change my heart, Lord; make me beautiful to You within.
